SOURCE:

1. The Tudeh Party has been operating "for some time" a small, powerful radio set for communication with its provincial committees.¹ The set is operated only late at night or during the early morning hours. The Party operates the set, despite the fact that it is aware that the Iranian Army now possesses equipment designed to locate radio transmitters,² as a "show of power" to the Government, apparently secure in the belief that no attempt will be made by the Government to locate the set.
2. The Azerbaijan Democrat Party (ADP) clandestine radio station is installed on a truck and operated from the Soviet side of the Araxes River. Because the station is mobile, it has not been possible for the Iranian Government and Army to determine its location.
